

Change for the Best

Bringing professionals together like never before

MARK RIECK, IRWA EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

“Better, Better, Best” has always been my motto. Constantly strive to get better, and every once in a while we can stop and celebrate a best effort. I think fiscal year 2015-2016 is going to be our best yet.

As we enter a new fiscal year, you can expect a cadre of new programs, products and services designed to simplify, innovate and automate our Association, making it easier for members to stay current, credentialed and connected than ever before.

In the area of membership, our new online join feature will allow prospective members to join instantly. They simply enter their own profile information—any time from anywhere—with an immediate notification sent to the appropriate chapter. Simultaneously, the pending member receives a confirmation receipt, along with a link to an electronic welcome kit.

Potential members can now join online!

IRWA partnered with ORC Training on four new online courses for 2015 release.

For education, we are entering the third year of our five-phase education plan, and we are ahead of schedule on program delivery. In fact, we are accelerating our push for new education products with a first of its kind partnership with O.R. Colan Training that will add four new online products to our education portfolio in 2015.

In the area of instructor development, we are pleased to announce the launch of our Partnership for Infrastructure Professional Education through IRWA University. This will provide new tools and support for our existing instructors, while engaging with global partners to bring new expertise and education to all our members and the industries we serve.

As for credentialing, our industry-centric pathways to the SR/WA have been defined, simplified into three levels and a pilot program will begin this fall in Region 6, ensuring members have access to all the courses they need to meet their SR/WA education requirements in three years or less. You can also look for a new credentialing module in early 2016 that will let you chart a personal professional development path—online.

Nothing at IRWA happens in a vacuum, and as we strive to get better, IRWA finds itself in a unique position, bringing professionals together and taking our Association places it has never been, every day.

Better, Better, Best. Here's to a great year ahead. Onward. 🚀
