

Raising the Bar

IRWA pushes forward with training and resources to keeping members informed and engaged

Ethics Are Paramount

Adherence to high ethical standards is one of the most important factors in differentiating our members from other professionals. As part of an overall initiative to elevate ethics as a cornerstone of IRWA membership, the Association recently launched a new internal advertising campaign called "Ethics are Elementary." The campaign includes public service style ads designed to serve as a casual reminder of a serious subject. Based on IRWA's 10 ethical rules of professional conduct, the ads can be placed in chapter newsletters, on websites and used in other promotional materials.

These two ads will kick-off the campaign. Look for them in this magazine and your Chapter newsletters!

Instructor Training – Reimagined and Reinvigorated

IRWA continues its efforts to improve our educational offerings and participants' experience at courses. In pursuit of excellence in both categories, IRWA recently held an inaugural instructor CLIMB training event in Manhattan Beach, CA. The instructors participated in two rigorous days of learning interactive and inspiring techniques to engage their students using groundbreaking educational methods. Be sure to read our next issue for a more in-depth look at this event.

Webinar: Securing the National Grid

March 28, 2016, 12:00 pm – 1:00 pm PST

In this free webinar, Author Pat O'Neill will address meaningful measures to help secure the nation's grid by harnessing the eyes and ears of those who work on site. Hosted by the International Electric & Utilities Committee, online registration is available at www.irwaonline.org by clicking on the "Meetings and Events" tab.

Utilities Update and Mock Trial

March 18, 2016, 8:00 am – 5:00 pm

The International Electric & Utilities Committee is presenting a one-day symposium offering IRWA, MCLE, and OREA continuing education credits.
